OACDL Superstar Seminar

Jolie S. Brams, Ph.D.

Brams and Associates, Inc. - Columbus, Ohio

Jolie Brams earned her undergraduate degree from the University of Texas at Austin, graduating with Special Honors in Psychology and being admitted to the Phi Beta Kappa honor society. She has a dual degree in clinical psychology and child development from Michigan State University, where she was a National Institute of Mental Health Graduate Student Fellow. She completed two years of internship at Upstate Medical Center in Syracuse NY, and Hurley Medical Center in Flint, MI, where she began a center for the assessment and treatment of child neglect, which still operates today. Beginning as providing forensic services in juvenile matters, she was the pivotal witness in a capital case involving an eighteen year old who executed three people, including his best friend. Her testimony assisted in a sentence of life and not death, and since that time 25 years ago has consulted and testified in hundreds of criminal and civil cases. She applies her knowledge of life span psychology, diagnosis of children and adults, and a multitude of experiences with a broad range of clients and cases to finding answers to complex forensic psychological issues. Jolie has more than 30 years of experience as a licensed psychologist. She is a nationally recognized forensic expert, qualified to testify in multiple state, Federal, and military courts. She is an Adjunct Faculty at The Ohio State University and frequent presenter at legal trainings and conferences. Dr. Brams has authored and contributed to numerous research papers and books. She is also a member Ohio Supreme Court Advisory Board regarding Juvenile Competency Law.

C. Mathew Curtin

Interhack - Columbus, Ohio

C. Matthew Curtin is a computer scientist and cybersecurity expert. He leads Interhack's professional practice, addressing matters such as data breaches, intellectual property protection, computer crime, and use of data in litigation. Curtin has been engaged in criminal, civil, administrative, and military processes for both those bringing and defending actions, as well as for the court directly. His opinion has been accepted by federal and state courts throughout the country in hearings, trials, and in appeals. In 1997 he helped to lead the DESCHALL project to defeat the U.S. Government Data Encryption Standard (DES) for the first time in open research using exhaustive key search. His book Brute Force: Cracking the Data Encryption Standard (Copernicus Books, 2005) tells the inside story of the effort and how it led to a change in policy regarding strong cryptography. Curtin was the primary investigator in Interhack's Internet Privacy Project, showing how decisions made in the design and implementation of Internet-connected systems impact the security of computer systems and the privacy of their users. The work has been reported throughout the worldwide media and computer science literature. Curtin's previous book, Developing Trust: Online Privacy and Security (Apress, 2001) discusses these matters in detail. Curtin has held an academic post as Senior Lecturer at The Ohio State University's Department of Computer Science and Engineering, and has guest lectured for the Privacy Foundation at the University of Denver's Sturm College of Law, Otterbein College, Franklin University, the Keller Graduate School of Management at DeVry University, and the Fisher College of Business at The Ohio State University. As a volunteer, Curtin provides public service in emergency communications and emergency response. He is an amateur radio operator (KD8TTE), and carries qualifications and certifications in the FEMA Incident Command System (ICS), National Incident Management System (NIMS), National Weather Service SKYWARN, and is a member of the Franklin County Ohio Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) as well as the Ohio Amateur Radio Emergency Service Mutual Assistance Team (ARES/MAT).

Marjorie P. Russell

MARJury Consulting - Mason, Michigan

Marjorie P. Russell is a case development, trial and jury consultant. A lawyer for 35 years; she has tried and assisted on hundreds of civil and criminal cases, in state and federal courts, all over the US. Her work as a consultant on the civil side is limited to plaintiffs, and includes medical malpractice, personal injury and death of all kinds, and civil rights cases. On the criminal defense side she has represented and been part of the team for the accused in federal terrorism cases and multi-defendant prosecutions - including death penalty, murder and white collar crimes, and in state court - capital and life felonies, claims of sexual assault and abuse, and drug and alcohol cases. Whether in active cases or in continuing education seminars, Marjorie's perspective on case and trial preparation employs a blend of action methods, storytelling techniques, a little brain science, and a good dose of humanity. She is a specialist at finding the story, values and connections that move jurors to action. Once discovered, Marjorie can guide the lawyers and witnesses in presenting their story in a compelling and memorable form. Ms. Russell is a Distinguished Professor Emeritus, retired after 30 years at Western Michigan University Thomas Cooley Law School in Michigan, where she was primary architect and the last chair of the Litigation Skills department. She is a frequent presenter and trainer at continuing education seminars for lawyers nationwide. In Michigan, she trains the staff who teach in the Criminal Defense Attorneys of Michigan skills seminars and its annual Criminal Defense Trial College, which she helped found in 2004. She has been active on the staff of the Trial Lawyers College founded by Gerry Spence and others, since 1996. She regularly teaches at TLC regional seminars, as well as the TLC Colleges and the criminal defense seminar [In Defense of the Damned] held at the home ranch in Wyoming. Many of her techniques have been honed in the amazing laboratory of the TLC, for which she is incredibly grateful.

Ian N. Friedman

Friedman & Nemecek - Cleveland, Ohio

Ian N. Friedman is a founding partner of Friedman & Nemecek in Cleveland, Ohio. His defense practice is focused on complex criminal and technology matters. He has a fierce reputation for taking on the tough cases that garner national and international attention. He has appeared on behalf of individual and corporate clients across the United States, Europe, Asia and South America. In 2011, Ian was named the first ever "Lawyer of the Year" by the Ohio Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers. He served as OACDL president from 2008-2009. He was inducted into the American Board of Criminal Lawyers in 2010 and now serves as the president of the prestigious organization. The peer reviewed, Best Lawyers, honored him with the 2019 "Lawyer of the Year" Award for Criminal Defense: General Practice in Cleveland, Ohio. In 2019, he becomes president of the Cleveland Metropolitan Bar Association.
